JOB TITLE: RESEARCH ASSISTANT - CRYPTOCURRENCY AND BLOCKCHAIN (FIXED TERM)

REPORTS TO: CCAF EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

Background

The Cambridge Judge Business School is a world-class business school at the heart of the University of Cambridge. The School offers predominantly postgraduate degrees in management, finance, technology policy, and its full-time MBA programme is highly ranked in the world by the Financial Times.

Established in January 2015, the Cambridge Centre for Alternative Finance (CCAF) is an international and interdisciplinary research centre dedicated to the study of alternative finance, focusing on new financial instruments and channels of finance emerging outside of the traditional financial system in the areas of alternative financing channels, alternative approaches to credit analytics and alternative payment systems. The purpose of the CCAF is to provide academic thought leadership, evidence-based policy output and industry practice insights to improve global business practice in all aspects of finance. In addition to the focus on research and its dissemination to academics, businesses and policymakers, the Centre has a teaching agenda, delivering executive education courses, developing teaching material, both traditional and online, and developing lecture courses for the MBA and other programmes at the Business School, as well as for programmes elsewhere in the University.

The role

The purpose of the role is to contribute to the Centre’s cryptocurrency and blockchain research programme and to assist in the design, conduct, analysis and write-up of research surveys and studies. The candidate will support and maintain the national and international reputation of the Cambridge Centre for Alternative Finance for excellence in research and teaching. Contribution to excellence in research will be at the level of an experienced and skilled researcher demonstrating a high level of competence and an independent standing in top-quality academic research. The role holder will work in close collaboration with the programme lead as well as internal and external researchers to produce relevant research studies and other related activities. The role holder will participate in the overall contribution of the Centre as appropriate.

MAIN RESPONSIBILITIES

Research

• Make use of standard research methods and techniques.
• Assist in the design of studies and surveys.
• Contribute to the data collection and analysis process.
• Write up results of surveys and other research work for presentation and publication (act as co-author of research studies).
• Identify adequate secondary data sources and conduct literature review.
• Present information on research progress and outcomes to bodies supervising research.
• Write or contribute to publications or disseminate research findings using other appropriate media.
• Assist in the preparation of proposals and applications to external bodies, e.g. for funding and contractual purposes.
• Make presentations at conferences or exhibit work in other appropriate events.
• Routinely communicate complex and conceptual ideas to those with limited knowledge and understanding as well as to peers using high level skills and a range of media.
• Continually update knowledge and understanding in field or specialism.

Liaison and networking

• Collaborate actively within and outside the School to complete research projects and advance thinking.
• Develop links with external contacts such as other educational and research bodies, industry associations and their members, as well as public sector institutions.
• Build internal and external contacts and participate in networks for the exchange of information and to form relationships for future collaboration.
• Originate and develop external networks, for example, to identify sources of funding, generate income, obtain consultancy projects, or build relationships for future activities.

Planning and organising

• Contribute to project management and associated tasks.
• Plan own day-to-day research activity within the framework of the agreed programme.
• Coordinate own work with that of others to avoid conflict or duplication of effort.
• Contribute to the planning and execution of related research projects.
• Contribute to the development of a ‘blockchain hub’ in Cambridge that brings together students, University departments, enterprise partners, and public-sector representatives.

The person

The ideal candidate should have the following qualities, skills and attributes. You are asked to provide a covering letter demonstrating how your own experience meets these requirements. In addition, you are encouraged to explain your own research interests.

• Masters or PhD degree and in exceptional circumstances undergraduate degree.
• Background in economics, finance, law, computer science and/or social sciences.
• Strong writing skills including ability to communicate technical detail to a broad audience.
• Strong qualitative research skills, such as experience in designing and carrying out interviews, focus groups and stakeholder surveys.
• Strong Excel and data analytics skills.
• Demonstrated ability to design, conduct, analyse and write up survey research.
• Driven and committed, demonstrating initiative, self-motivation and eagerness to familiarise with new concepts.
• Good time management and planning skills with a commitment to delivery.
• Will continually update knowledge in the specialist area and engage in continuous professional development.
• Able to work independently and as part of an interdisciplinary and collaborative project.

DESIRABLE CHARACTERISTICS

• Breadth/depth of specialist knowledge in the area of cryptocurrencies and distributed ledger technology (DLT), including a robust understanding of the economic and legal implications of both public and permissioned blockchains as well as a solid understanding of the underlying technical specifications.
• Experience in researching cryptocurrencies, blockchain and other aspects of the DLT.
• Proven track record in conducting impactful DLT industry and policy research.
• Specialist knowledge of research methods and techniques to develop research objectives, projects and proposals.

Benefits

The salary will be in the range £25,728-£29,799 per annum. There will be a six month probationary period. This is a fixed term appointment for one year in the first instance. Holiday entitlement is 33 days per annum plus eight days of public holidays.

The full incremental salary range for the position is advertised in order to demonstrate the progression for the Grade. In the majority of cases appointments will be made at the Grade minimum; only in very specific exceptional circumstances can a higher salary be offered.

The University of Cambridge comprises more than 150 departments, faculties, schools and other institutions, plus a central administration and 31 independent and autonomous Colleges.
